The New Religion

- The Motto:
  We take the bullshit out of religion.
  - The Ultimate Sin:
    Belief
    - The Attitudes:
      Curiosity/humility
      - The Method:
        Science
        - The Assumptions:
          - Ultimately, it's all God

In ~~this~~ religion you don't hear other people's theorys until you've proposed your own and defended your own.

Show Hume — the problem is you have two different agendas and in your system of analysis are mutually exclusive. Your concept of your "self" isn't large enough to encompass an apparent paradox.. This paradox is engendered by the grammatical structure →

→ of the English language running in your L.M. If you lose your temper, you lose.

Using your temper is one something else. It's pointless being angry at most apes. You might as well be angry at ~~the~~ a tornado. It's the natural proclivity of a ape to act in its limited self-interest. It's as easy for a ape to be stupid, unconscious, malicious and ignorant as it is for a ~~bear~~ bear to have claws.

Philosophical Phundamentals

A global religion must be founded on principles that everyone agrees on — that is Negative Premises

e.g. human knowledge is not ultimate truth.

The best we can do is to not be incorrect

Sapes need a little humility. They need to realize they don't possess the ultimate truth.

Sapes must become open to the possibility that they have radically misunderstood misconstrued misrepresented. the nature of reality!

whether or not there actually IS an objective reality out there. is not as significant as the ~~results~~ sociological/psychological/philosophical results of believing there IS or believing there isn't or abandoning belief altogether.

Throughout most of human history (until recently) people have accepted, unconsciously, unquestioningly, the assumptions of their culture. Whatever they learned as children never had to be unlearned. They continuely refined their model of reality.

We are the fist generations of humans to outlive our initial assumptions. ideas
Yet we have no traditional mechanisms to guide this process. In fact, our tradition suppresses all questioning of the basic cultural assumptions.
the very concept of "adult" is ridiculous.
We must have a new agreement on basics - world-wide.

Most of the problems that plague humanity... from national to individual result from one simple mis-evaluation

1/14 Disclaimer/Preface

(1) Most of humanity's problems, from international (Bosnia, etc) to societal (crime interpersonal (arguments, fights) intrapersonal (anxiety, insanity, etc) are held in place by a single misevaluation of the relationships language knowledge experience

Not that this problem mis-eval. caused these problems but more like that are held in place/created in place by the language that flows from the misevaluation.

Our mappings of experience have changed since the time of Aristotle. Has been a gradual change over centuries and the popular/mass conceptions have always lagging behind the leading edge.

The popular conceptions today are lagging far behind the current understanding.

Before I can explain the mis-evaluation precisely, I want to explore the nature of maps.

In figure 1. we see a topographical map. In figure 2. we see a street map ~~of the~~ representing the same territory as figure 1.

Which map is the true one?

They can't both be true, can they?

Yes they can – of course.

Obviously, the idea of THE TRUE Map is ridiculous. No map can ever have all the information. If it did, it would be the terr: not a map. A map is useful precisely because it leaves out much of the terr.

All maps are partial truths at best. The truth of a map is judged by its fit to the terr, not by the truth of another map.

/116

Any theory, explanation, story, ideology, belief system, etc that is embodied in language, has no more claim to "validity" (?) ~~that~~ than does any other map.

A theory is ~~any~~ merely a map made of language.

To mistake a map for the territory is a serious mistake.

Anyone who claims to possess the ultimate truth is crazy, ~~misinformed~~, or a liar.

Each language (English, French, Chinese, etc. is a map (★) of experience, and in a pre-industrial world, the mis-eval. was of no consequence.

★ A collection of related maps — an atlas.

But the world has changed.
We must outgrow our stupid old ideas

Anyone who believes that his/her understanding of the world is really The way it is, is insane.

People who believe their map is The right map - can't negotiate.

Obviously, if their map is the right one, and your map is different, then you are either stupid or bad.

A planet of sapes are not capable of managing a high-tech integrated 21st Century Earth.

Poll gives diehard Flintstones' fans something to chew on

TRENDS: At long last, Betty Rubble will become a vitamin.

By GEORGEA KOVANIS
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

The votes have been tallied, and it's good news for Betty backers.

Betty Rubble will finally become a Flintstones vitamin — just like the rest of her Stone Age pals.

She'll make her debut Jan. 1, the vitamin-maker announced last week.

"This is a new era," says Betty Payne, president of a national club for women named Betty.

The children's chewables debuted in 1969 with figures of Fred, Wilma, Barney, Pebbles, Bamm Bamm, Dino and even the Flintmobile.

But, sigh, no Betty.

The folks at Bayer, makers of the vitamins, say they left Betty out because her waist was so thin she kept breaking in half.

Bad feelings about the snub escalated over the years. And last spring, yielding to public pressure, Bayer held a nationwide vote to determine Betty's fate.

Betty won a place in the bottle — 15,821 votes to 1,492.

Betty will come in six flavors — orange, cherry, grape, raspberry, strawberry and peach-apricot. She'll wear her hair in her trademark flip. And she'll have her hands on her waist.

"We wanted to give her a pose that sort of suited her personality," says Karen Lazan, product manager for Flintstones Vitamins.

Few people are happier about the news than Payne, whose Betty Club circulated petitions to have Betty turned into a vitamin.

"We'll be the first ones in line to get that vitamin," says Payne, 68. "In fact, I think I may buy a bottle and keep it as a souvenir."

There is, however, a loser in all of this: The rag-topped Flintmobile vitamin will be discontinued to make room for Betty.

The truth of your metaphysical theories is irrelevant. Metaphysical theories cannot be true or false. They are propositional functions. ($e=mc^2$)

Architecture entails two aspects

art
technology

Likewise thinking entails an artistic component

In Architecture if you only want to build something to keep the rain off your head, you don't need to know any more than common sense engineering – experience helps

If, however, you want to build a Gothic Cathedral or the Sears Tower - you need to know a little engineering.

Likewise

In thinking if all you want to know about is how to survive, ~~in this culture~~ you don't need to know any more than the common myths, folklore, social indoctrination.

If, however, you want to understand motivations of people, how you fit into the world around you, the planet, civilization, galaxy. What's gonna happen in the next 30 yrs. — then you need to know a little geology.

Part of your indoctrination is your very absolute ~~except~~ acceptance of certain metaphysical assumptions.

You say, "But if I question that, I have to question everything!"

I say, "You got it right, pal."

"You need to think it all through again and you need to be conscious this time."

You been avoiding the mystery, the silence.
You're trying to control it all, get it all together; get one up on life.
It can't be done. Period.
Since you were a child you've been lied to by most adults about the nature of reality. You've been caught in a double bind.
Actually you're lucky. There're no obvious gross neurological problems.
It's strictly a soft-ware issue.
3 month's work/max.

Plenty of people think they know what's going on. They don't. They're crazy or stupid.
I have theories. Some are pretty good, I think. But I don't believe 'em. They're just the best I've been able to come up with so far.

At the bottom, it a mystery dance.

10,202

There's a curious paradox here, the moment you 'achieve' individuality, you transcend it. The moment you give up the desire to be god and just be you (your idea of who you think you are) you become god.

... because reality is literally unspeakable (experience)

Watts gave me my 1st ~~met~~epistemological orgasm... you could say he got my spiritual virginity. I had actually been unconscious up until Watts came into my life. I've never recovered. He woke me up.

I'd been teased/aroused by some writers but Watts was the 1st to go ALL THE WAY. I read all his work and that of many others, practiced meditations, took a lot of drugs (various) (& curiously, I seem to be immune to LSD)

Korzybski, Feyerabend, Fuller, Henry Miller, Gurdjieff, Wittgenstein

I enjoy listening to Watts with much the same attitude with which I enjoy a Shostakovich Quartet or a Bach/Gould Partita

After 10 years searching, I found myself in an uncomfortable position of having gotten pretty good with the words but in my heart I knew that I hadn't made any progress in the area that mattered most (I can't "say" what area this is)

Anyway, during my confrontation with this unpleasant fact, I did make an important observation.

I noticed that most of my activity during the previous decade consisted of activity in the domain of language i.e. speaking hearing reading and a little writing.

10,204

I thought I might stir something up by looking more rigorously at the relation between Long and all this stuff.

I undertook to debug English.
I began immediately to see movement.
Currently I find I am unable to formulate any 'serious' ~~that~~ metaphysical questions with any emotional steam attached to them.

It is read with great interest and frustration - the messages here.
Attempting to make sense of all this in normal English is hopelessly confused and impossible. It's a little like using a ~~rubb~~ elastic ruler to design/build a house.

It's really impossible to sort out the b.s. It's better/easier to just throw it all out and start ~~all~~ all over. (This is what Descartes attempted) He failed of course, because it never occurred to him that he had to get rid of the unconscious metaphysical assumptions embedded in the structure coded in the lang. in which he thought.

Starting with negative premises. (Bachelard, Korzybski, ~~etc.~~ et. al.)

Knowing about the problems of English is actually of little value. Reprogramming the LM is what is required.

An amateur stargazer finds planet

Reuters

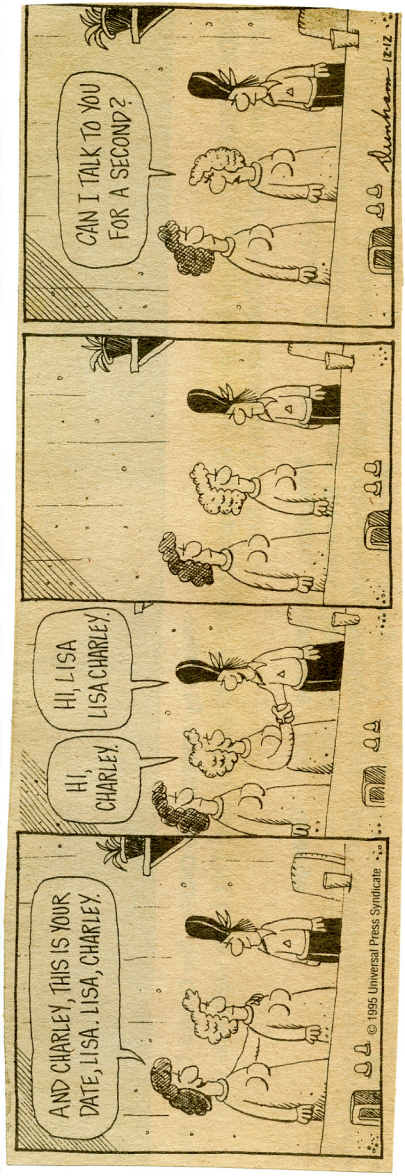

LONDON — An amateur astronomer in Britain has discovered a tiny planet 400 million miles from Earth with a telescope rigged up in his garden shed.

"I've been stargazing since I was 11 years old, but I never thought anything like this would happen to me," George Sallit said after the discovery of Sallit One was verified by experts at Harvard University and the Smithsonian Institute in the United States.

It is one of several thousand minor planets in the solar system.

Sallit, 43, found the 20-mile-diameter planet between Mars and Jupiter quite by chance. At first he thought it was a scratch on his lens, he told The Times newspaper.

He expressed appreciation for his wife, Jennifer, who constantly brings him cups of tea in his shed. He said: "When I told her I'd found a new planet, she said, 'That's nice, dear.' "

Violent urges caused him to kill 2 women, man, says suspect

CRIME: He says he probably would have killed again if police hadn't found him.

The Associated Press

STOCKTON — A man charged with killing two Oregon women said sudden violent urges drove him to shoot them and a Visalia man to death.

Robert James Acremant, 27, told The Record of Stockton newspaper that he probably would have killed again if police hadn't found him in a motel there Wednesday.

But Acremant told the paper that Scott George, a drinking buddy from Visalia, was his first victim. George disappeared Oct. 3.

Visalia police still are treating George's disappearance as a missing person case, spokesman Mike Correia said.

Acremant is accused of murdering Roxanne Ellis and Michelle Abdill in Medford, Ore., on Dec. 4. He waived his right to an extradition hearing Friday and will be returned to Oregon.

Acremant said he hoped to be executed.

"I don't feel any remorse for these people," Acremant said during the interview at the San Joaquin County Jail. "I didn't have the life I wanted. I didn't have the girl I wanted."

Acremant, who had a master's degree in business administra-

the heart to kill him, Acremant said.

"I just had the urge to see what it was like to shoot somebody," Acremant said. "I don't know why."

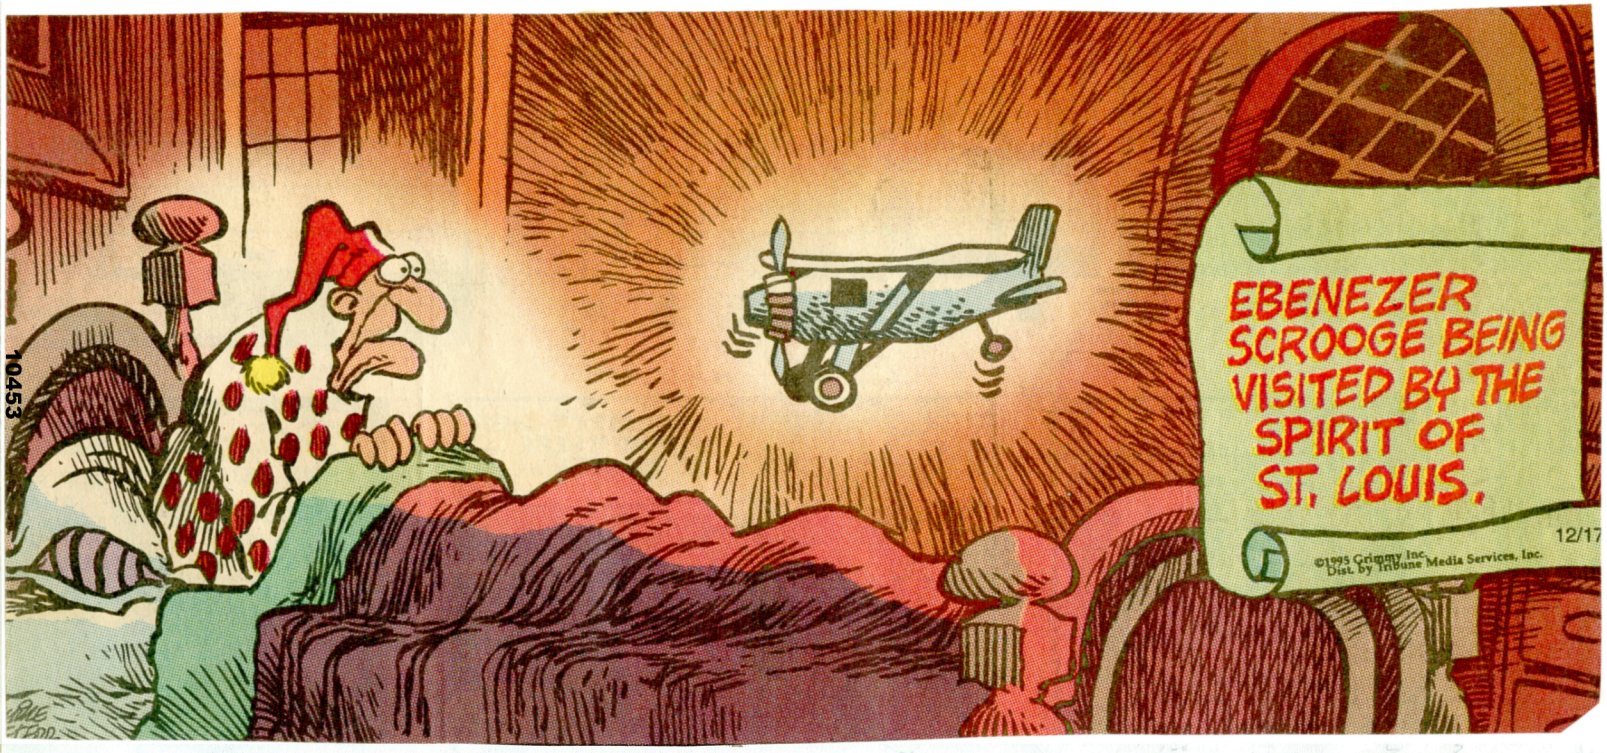

Acremant said he never planned to kill the two Oregon women, either. He said he wanted to rob a property management firm by arranging to see a townhouse and then forcing the owner to write him a check.

When the first company sent an employee rather than the owner, he tried again — reaching Ellis.

After meeting Ellis at a townhouse and eventually luring Abdill there, he plotted to move both women to another location to avoid being tracked down.

It wasn't until he forced them to lie in the back of the pickup truck — and then picked up his gun — that he felt like shooting them in the back of the head.

"I just had the urge," he said

We need to start claiming liberation.
It doesn't mean that I'm perfectly happy all the time, that I don't get pissed off at stupid things, make errors in evaluation, etc.
We can be pretty sure what doesn't work, what NOT to do. It's ~~not quite~~ as ~~obvious WHAT TO DO~~.
It means I don't believe everything my LM says. It means I don't ~~anything~~ believe (for very long) I may still even have some unconsciously operating BS.
But, and this is an important "but",

10,265

I'm not unconsciously defending my (BS) belief systems. If you can demonstrate to me a previously (for me) unconscious assumption, I will thank you sincerely for you will have contributed greatly to my liberation.

Liberation forces my to an awareness that under all our theories, explanations lies the Mystery.

Unspeakable Mystery of immediate sensory experience

Over the past several years, it has become apparent to me that "I" has become liberated.

Being liberated, and being able to talk usefully about liberation are two different things. I see now that I experienced Liberation as a more or less constant state sometime over the past two years.

It's taken me 2 years to begin to be able to talk about it usefully/skillfully. Actually this is my coming out of the closet announcement.

Like you, I have discovered that belief is the great sin. The truth or falsehood is one of the least important aspects of a belief system (BS). The behavior generated by the BS is far more important consideration than when you are liberated from the need to believe your theories you're free to imagine ANYTHING.

One of the first things to master in thinking is knowing when you're thinking and when you're not.
A good clear definition make this easy.
A bad ambiguous def. will make it impossible - upaya - the teacher's job is to dig holes into which the student falls. In climbing out of the hole, the student learns.

As long as a student keeps falling into the holes, it needs a teacher.

Eventually the student doesn't fall too far before realizing the trap.

Eventually the student becomes comfortable in free-fall

You say you understand Watts.
Yet you still seek liberation.
Obviously you don't understand it.
If you REALLY understood it, you'd be liberated

What you mean is you are beginning to become familar with Watts talk, phrasing, vocabulary. You have a "good" feeling when you hear Watts talk. A "recognition" of truth. You recognize a genuine mind in the act of attempting to think well.

A calendar is more than a map of time. It's a creator of realities. For many 10s of thousands of years, we have used the cycle of the sun and moon to mark the passage of time

Why is new years day on Jan. 1? Not "why is it called Jan. 1" but why that time of year? Why not in the spring or summer? Why that particular day. Is there some significant celestial event on Jan 1? No. But there is a very significant event just 10 days earlier. The winter solstice. the first day of winter, the days with the fewest minutes of sunlight. Aft

Note: Sidereal Astrology

10,298

↗ the coldest part of winter in the Northern Hemisphere comes in February.

The Lunar Calendar is not primarily concerned with the ~~sun~~ solar cycle. although it does note the Winter Solstice, Sunday and the 3 other major ~~sun~~ solar Holidays

The Lunar and solar cycles are not commenserate. There are no specific number of moons per sun (year). The word "month" is related to the word moon. Although the months has had not relationship with the actual motions of the moon for at least a thousand years in most of the western world.

Individuals, of course, continued to observe the cycles of the moon, even though the official calendar (church) pays no homage to it.

The Moon ruled the night

My Celtic ancestors (the people of Europe) lived in a heavily forested area as most of Europe was until the last century. People didn't travel the roads at night except the 4 or 5 nites around the full moon. They celebrated it's reappearance in the western ~~sunset~~ sky after sunset.

Women menstrual cycles are in tune with the moon. Grunion mate in the beach foam right after the full moons of spring

The Calendar Reform Movement

If we're going to really transform Earth, metamorphose, then we should start off fresh, with a new calendar. The old age of religion is gone. We are entering the Age of Bob. If you want to participate with us @

Although many may think the structure of the calendar ~~is~~ has little impact on the reality experienced by those under its influence, ~~it does~~ the calendar is fundamental to a satisfactory relationship with time.

Because of electric lights, we have lost touch with the universe. If you ask most people where they live in ~~Anaheim~~ Irvine Laguna not in the Milky Way Galaxy

Throughout 4000 years of civilization, the vast majority of "people" were really little more than very clever monkeys ruled by an even clever elite who were themselves ruled by a shaman. Before the printing press, learning was the province of the church elite and the aristocracy, the warlords.

History is just a story.

Thru the Dark Ages 500 - 1100, over 600 years, the flame of knowledge was kept alive by a tiny % of the population of sapes. Certainly less than a 1/10 of one percent of them.

Calendar

The only possible calendar for a reasonable planet

Heron is creating ~~the~~ an intellectual tool box should people decide to create a reasonable, loving, peaceful abundant, civilization sometime in the near future.

New Writing
New Numbers
New Calendar
New Clock

Why is it currently in year 11?
Well when the idea for it emerged, and I started designing it for reproduction, I realized that calendars have to have a beginning date, a year 1. So I started looking for some really significant event, astronomically or historically. One obvious astronomical event I looked for was an occurance of a new moon at the same time as the new year (winter Solstice). On the average, they should occur on the same day once every 29 or 30 years. However, it does not occur in fact at all during the period 1900 Jan 1 to 2000 Dec 31. So their was no obvious, unequivocal astronomical reason to set the calendars zero point.

Zero is a point, not a year

I then considered some important historical events but saw immediately that there is equall justification for many events being important enough to mark the beginning of a new calendar.

Then it dawned on me...

The calendar began now.

Q: When did the calendar start?
A: When it first came into physical form

There is no disputing it.
There is no metaphysical baggage or dogma around it.

The Calendar started when it came into existence. ~~It started~~ when it started

Moon 1 ~~began~~ began on December 11, 1985 (5086)

It marks the ~~time~~ when one entity woke up to reality learned to have our ~~time~~ maps of time actually be in alignment with the realities they claim to represent.

It ~~would~~ will be helpful if you understand that most of your ideas are ridiculous, stupid, unbookable, BS&shit ideas.
We have lots of ideas: occasionally we have good ones.
So, just because you have an idea, doesn't necessarily mean it's a good idea.
In addition to this, it would be further useful if you could distinguish between interesting, potentially beneficial idea and stupid, unnecessarily limiting ideas.

the thoughts you experience, moment to moment are the latest, farthest out little curlycues of the Big Bang
It's a fireworks show.

Now I don't ~~want to~~ claim that this or that theory/explanation/etc. is ~~more~~ right or wrong. Each map is measured by the territory it claims justified

I am saying that no single map or even any set of maps can encompass the reality/experience/etc.

Anyone who claims to have the final ultimate truth and can tell you what it is... is a fool or a liar

I'm talking about others.

the trance consists of the reifications of certain theories / sets of words.

1. the Universe ~~is made of~~ consists cause+effect on collections of things and the things are made of stuff.

2. I am a skin-encapsulated ego.

3. control

3. Stuff is stupid.

Q: How can I tell the difference between one of the acts and the real me.

A: Well, if you can identify it and talk about it, it's an act, because the observer can observe itself

Philosophical

Thinking is making maps with language. Systems are composed of multiple interrelated maps/theories/explanations/ verbal descriptions/inventions/etc.

Every time I tell you a truth, I prevent you from learning it. It becomes a theory to be understood and believed or not believed. It fits right into the L.M. It makes no difference... at first. But if you continue to subject the LM to new formulation Only you can make it real... to you

Most of what we take as aspects of some "external reality" is actually an aspect of our analysis of our experience.
"external reality" is merely a theory.

10,395

Belief is the Great Sin
Seek refuge in silence, not dogma. theory etc.

I know I don't know. and I'm looking for others who also know that they don't know. Together we can start asking questions.

Basic Principles of ESL

1. You can't "teach" anyone English.
2. You can only help them learn it.
3. People don't speak English properly because they don't hear it accurately.
4. One thing a teacher can do is help students to learn to hear more accurately.

10,398

If you think this is an abuse, I will ~~stop it~~ not.

I include my email address on all correspondence. Is this a problem? In my case research/teaching/business are intimately bound together. Most of my activities can be interpreted in terms of all of them simultaneously.

Sure at least 95% of my email involved communication the ~~other~~ co-researchers in the ~~fields of linguistics/epistemology/psychology/etc.~~ other people interested in exploring the relationship between language, thinking, creativity, politics, etc.

Not having the luxury of state-mandated course, I must locate my own students and convince them that it is worthwhile to spend at least a little time/effort/money/etc to learn How to think. So even my promotional material is de natured educational. Actually I consider my brochure lesson #1 in gendo.

If you can

It would be helpful if you could be more specific. I must admit I was taken aback by your message. If I'm doing anything that violates either the letter or the spirit of CORE philosophy, please let me know exactly what it is and I will correct it. Thank you.

Two approaches to eliminate old stupid beliefs

1. offer a better BS.
2. eliminate the very concept of belief as valid define belief as pathological.

Most people just assume that you have to believe something. The idea of founding a life a conscious assumption just doesn't occur to many people; yet.
Come to think of it, what's the difference between basing your life on a belief or and assumption.

Belief is disreputable

I ~~would~~ request 15 min of your time to give you a demonstration of how and why gendo works so well.

Teachers love it ~~it~~ because once the basic system is mastered (in ~~10 hrs.~~ maybe) 4-10 hrs

Note to teacher — it's ok to not be sure of just how to transcribe any specific utterance — there are many ambiguities in this situation. We are walking a line between accuracy and simplicity →

I know that teachers are desperate for specific methods to teach S+H skills

It's good for students to observe a teacher in the act of "listening" carefully.

If you're not really sure — just say so. Say it could be ƐՈN or ƐN.

Any transcription is only a more or less accurate mapping of the actual sounds.

I suggest gendo could occupy 40%-70% of your curriculum.

I want to get into the world of accomplished world class thinkers. I've done my work in isolation.

10,436

What most people see as "just plain life"; income taxes, work, inconveniences of all kinds - are accepted as inevitable parts of life, tolerable if unfortunate.
I see them as intolerable stupidities and utterly boring wastes of reality time space.

I'm not so naive as to think that then we will live in Paradise. I'm assuming a whole new dimension of "problems" will emerge - probably deep, more profound problems.
more challenging more interesting problems.
I'm bored with the old problems and the old solution.
Most people want new solutions to old problems.
I want new problems.

PAIN OF SACRIFICE: Japanese national Shinichiro Kaneko shows the pain on his face of being nailed to a cross Friday in San Pedro Cutud, the Philippines.

Men nailed to crosses in rituals

SACRIFICE: Participants in the Philippines re-enactment of the crucifixion pray that it protects the area from volcanic runoff.

The Associated Press

SAN PEDRO CUTUD, Philippines — A dozen Filipinos and a Japanese man were nailed to crosses Friday in re-enactments of the Crucifixion of Jesus, part of Good Friday observances in Asia's only Roman Catholic nation.

Participants in the annual ritual prayed their sacrifice would help protect this village, 30 miles north of Manila, from volcanic mud that spills down the slopes of Mount Pinatubo during the rainy season.

Two people underwent the ritual in another town.

Shinichiro Kaneko told village leaders he had traveled from Tokyo to make the sacrifice in hopes of helping cure a sick relative.

The 30-year-old man screamed as attendants dressed as Roman centurions hammered 4-inch nails through his palms into the wooden cross, which was then lifted to a vertical position.

With a crown of barbed wire on his head, he grimaced and wailed for about two minutes under a broiling sun until he was taken down and his hands bandaged.

Ropes around the participants' arms and bodies supported their weight on the crosses. Most had only their palms nailed, but others had their feet pierced as well with blows by a claw hammer.

"It's a form of sacrifice, of penitence," said Chito Sangalang, 37, who was nailed to a cross for the 10th year, but had his feet pierced this year for the first time.

The Roman Catholic hierarchy officially frowns on the re-enactments, which have been held here since 1955, but does little to discourage the popular rituals.

If you're digging for water,
it's better to dig one 60ft well than 10 sixft. wells.

A situation problem with teaching gendo is that most sapes haven't examined very carefully the concept of "I". But they don't like being reminded of it.

The only impregnable most solid foundation is ~~this~~ no foundation.

transhuman

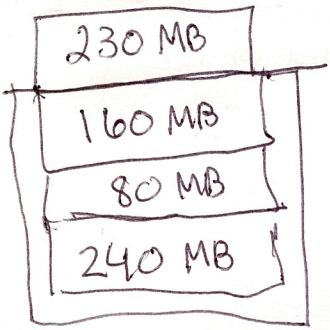

→ None of us has much of a solid theoretical understanding of the real nature of the universe we appear to inhabit; or our relationship to it.

→ Seek refuge in silence, not dogma.
